

The issues pertaining to public education are best left to state and local school boards. Congress should work to facilitate the continued successful use of vouchers, charter schools, and home schooling.